Hints of a Grand Design

Christmas, Prime Minister Pierre Elliot Trudeau increasingly dropped hints about a new Canadian society, more controlled by government and co-ordinated by a concensus among powerful interest groups. The prime minister is at pains to say he and his government have no master plan or blueprint for the future. It's just that we must change our excessive ways or the country won't survive. At least that is the message which emerges from his veiled remarks.

In a brief, aside at the end of his national television address last Thursday Trudeau alluded to "a new kind of society we will need to create in response to the new economic circumstances in which we are living . . ." He specifically mentioned new attitudes toward economic growth and the exploitation of our natural resources. He also mentioned "new attitudes towards labor management relations, social co-operation and the sharing of our wealth." All these things, the prime minister said, he would discuss with us in the coming months.

A new attitude towards economic growth can only mean less growth - up to now a heresy among Liberals that ranks with abolishing the Senate. New attitudes towards exploiting our natural resources can only mean saving more of them for ourselves. Sharing our wealth might refer to a guaranteed annual income plan, something Health Minister Marc Lalonde has been wrestling with for some time.

Are we to proceed by hint, indirection and ad hoc policies, as we have with our energy, taxation and foreign investment policies? The answer would appear to be a familiar shrug from our reluctant savior. Two days after the televi-

During the week or so before sion address Trudeau said the antiinflation program marks a change in the way the free enterprise system operates in Canada. The 30year-old quest for an unemployment cure without creating inflation had failed. The prime minister went on to say something has to change. But what? No answers were forthcoming even last Sunday night when the prime minister spent an hour conversing on CTV's W5.

> On the matter of the government's selective controls he was blunt: "It's telling the Canadian people we haven't been able to make it work, the free market system . . . The system is out of joint." From a Liberal prime minister this is like an electric shock. He went even further. If there are no changes during the three-year control period, controls will be maintained for a longer period. Rather than breaking up conglomerates of power within the economy, Trudeau talked of government control to ensure the public good, similar to the ideas of economist John Kenneth Galbraith. In fact the prime minister admitted that Galbraith "has permeated my thinking."

If in fact the government is preparing a social design for the post industrial state, it should be a fascinating document. From the prime minister's brief hints it sounds a long way from the flexible pragmatism that substitutes for Liberal ideology now. In fact, it sounds a lot like the kind of thing David Barrett used to talk about in expansive moods. Pierre Trudeau has a brilliant, wide ranging mind. Canadians have seen little of his theories in recent years. We look forward to the unveiling of this new design. Any comprehensive plan coming from this government would at least be novel.

But it will take more than novelty to restructure Canadian society. This country was founded on counter-revolution, small "c" conservatism and a colonial mentality we have never shrugged off. If we are suddenly going to remould the institutions that have served us well for 107 years, Canadians need more than hints, riddles and fragmentary blueprints. It is an old Trudeau trick to toss out bits and pieces of ideas in order to gauge public reaction. Such methods of subtle debate are useful in a democratic society. Yet this new theorizing is no mere policy changethe prime minister is talking about a-fundamental shift in values, politics' and economic relationships.

Are we to soar into the unknown on the wings of half-baked theories? Not likely. If this quixotic man who is our prime minister has a new vision, he should lay it out in total public view. Then call an election and let the Canadian people decide if they want to be part of his new dream.

In no way are these recommendations meant to be pejorative. Perhaps Trudeau is right. Evidence abounds that our familiar solutions don't work. Conventional answers to radical questions don't work. But people cannot be pushed into their own salvation; they must go willingly.

The Liberal government should also remember it was elected to preserve the very things its leader would discard. Canada has always had a mixed public and private economic system, with the accent on private enterprise.

But the system Trudeau hints at sounds a far cry from any existing system. The petals of the flower are not enough, prime minister, we want to see the whole plant before planting it in the bush garden.

". . . generally, we use rejection slips, but in this case . . ."

Technocracy

The people of B.C. have just witnessed a vitriolic scene of two philosophies of the price system in conflict. A new team has been chosen by popular choice to manage the same old redundant system. Next year our neighbors to the south will carry out a similar exercise in futility. They will also celebrate the bicentennial anniversary of another revolution was born in 1765 when James found effect on all North Americans than all the political elections in the past two hundred years will pass unnoticed. That revolution was born in 1776 when James Watt invented the steam engine and made it possible to convert the energy in coal into useful energy to do work. One hundred and fifty years later the progression of the industrial revolution made it possible, for the first time in the history of man, to produce an abundance on this continent for all North Americans and proved the incapability of the price system, designed for the distribution of a dance. In the last 75 years man-hours per unit of production have decreased from above 10 to less than one. If the gross national produst growth rate continues, this continent will have moved from a have position to a have-not position in the very first decade of the 21st century.

If you have not investigated a system where science is applied to the social system and where money and all its bad characteristics are replaced by energy certificates and where goods and services are evaluated in units of energy required to produce them, then you cannot be very seriously concerned and you cannot plead ignorance of such a system. Technocracy has tried to reach you for the last 40 years. There is no greater fool than the one who cannot recognize the fool-within him or her. May you enjoy the federal government's anti-inflation Christmas gift and what the price system will do to you in 1976. - J. J. Gibson, 920 Easter Road.

Taxing Poverty

It has been stated that the poverty level of income is $4,000 per year, or, if brought down to a monthly figure, $333.33 per month.

Now, scanning the 1974 income tax table, and allowing a person $1,700 personal deduction, and $100 medicalcharity allowances, that person has to pay an income tax on $2,200 of $341 or

My question is: if one is earning a poverty level income of $4,000 per year (or $333.33 per month), how does the government justify reducing this income, through the medium of income tax, to $3,659 pter year (or $304.92 per month)? Shouldn't all income tax start above the poverty level?-D. S. Groves, 1147 Qua-

I am very surprised at Henry Bitterman's letter in the Victoria Times. He refers to the firefighters 'spoiled" and "a necessary evil." He says in the 29 years he has lived in Victoria he has seen very few fires of any consequence in the city.

Snowfall Values

I wish to draw your attention to an inaccurate statement contained in a Saturday, Dec. 20 article entitled, Snow Never Another Inch. The article quoted average annual snowfall values for various locations across Canada and unfortunately it was stated that the average of 326 centimetres (cm) at Knob Lake (Schefferville), Quebec, was the highest in the country In fact there are many climate stations in British Columbia which have long-term averages of more than 326 cm and at least 14 of these have averages of more than 500 cm. Allison Pass in Man ning Park, for example, has annual average of 965 cm snowfall. The highest recorded average at a climate station is 1071 cm (approximately 35 feet) at Tahtsa Lake, about 75 miles south of Smithers. These large snowfall totals occur in British Golumbia, especially in the coast mountains, as cool moist air from the Pacific is forced to rise abruptly as it passes over mountain ranges on its way to the interior of the continent. In general the Pacific air is not as cold as the air masses that occur in eastern Canada during winter, with the result that it can hold more water vapor and more precipitation results as it is cooled during uplift over the mountains. The end effect is a vitally important natural resource which is unparalleled in Cana da and about which your readers should be informed. — R. G. Wilson, Ph.D., Climatologist, 1887 Taylor Street.

In Windsor, there have been only six murders during 1975. Of course, the Canadian city is far smaller with a populatin of about 200,000 people. Nonetheless, the contrast between the murder and general crime rates in the two cities both in total numbers and on a per capita basis - is astounding.

To any visitor to this city and neighboring Windsor, what is even more remarkable is that the rampant crime on the American side of the border hasn't spilled over to Canada.

Certainly, many Windsor residents — watching the smoke and flames rise about Detroit's skyline during the riots that hit that city in the late 1960s feared it was only a matter of time before their city's crime rate would soar

After all, Windsor — to the chagrin of many of its residents - has a reputation for being the "most Américan of Canadian cities." When people in Windsor go to NHL hockey games it's the Detroit Red Wings they see. Football in Windsor means the Detroit Lions. In summer they cheer on the Detroit Tigers baseball

However, the commission fell would be dangerous to let the crime probe come to a premature end. The very existence of organized crime has been a subject of debate for a long time in Quebec. For 15 years now public opinion has been rather unfavorable towards the police and towards politicians who were too closely identified with law-keeping operations. One of the particularisms of Quebec is that it is a conflict-oriented society where dif-ferences assume far more imferences assume far more importance than similarities. Tensions build up rather quickly and public opinion tends to become polarized fairly readily. Politicians such as Pierre Trudeau, Rene Levesque and Robert Bourassa are very much aware of this trait, and they have exploited it for their own purposes on the issue of separatism versus federalism. tism versus federalism.

Conflicts in Quebec boil over and get out of hand more rapidly than anywhere else in rapidly than anywhere else in Canada. In this respect it is revealing to note the role played by group rivalries in the spread of union violence and the growth of organized criminal activities. custom, this column has called home its chief contributing correspondents for the annual year-end roundup, and they are sitting here now waiting to round up the annual year. Let's hear first from Buck Strothers, our correspondent who covers the vital national-trends beat. What kind of year was 1975 national-trendwise, Buck?

"As long as I've got the floor for once, I'd like to know why you always get to write the column while I have to do all the work?"

Election Demanded By Tory Hamilton

Times Ottawa Bureau OTTAWA - The Trudeau government should call a general election before going any farther with plans to control the Canadian economy, a Tory MP said Tuesday.

Alvin Hamilton said the people had a right to choose and Trudeau should call an election on the issue "if he was honest and democratic."

Hamilton told a news con-ference that Trudeau's weekend speech saying the free market system was not work-ing had "scared the hell out of a lot of people."

"We thought he was sincere when he said the wage and price controls were tempo-rary and now he says some form of controls may around for one time,"

Hamilton, a former cabinet minister under the leadership of John Diefenbaker, said the prime minister was wrong in saying the free enterprise system had not worked.

"Even if it stumbles," he said, "it is the best system which has yet emerged.

Dr. Guy Joron, who works with diabetics at two Montreal hospitals, said the manufacture of the manufac facturer who normally sup-plies globin insulin to Canada, Burroughs Wellcome Ltd., stopped producing the drug two years ago because it was not commercially successful.

However by the time stocks run out, the globin in-sulin will be available to Canadian diabetics through another U.S. company, Squibb and Sons Ltd.

Fur Sales Up Despite Prices

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian consumers are expected to buy $100-million worth of fur coats this year despite an average increase of 15 per cent in the price of fur garments since 1974, a number of fur buyers say.

Cyril Berlin, buyer for Holt Rentrew and Co. Ltd. in Montreal, said increasing demand throughout the world, especially in Europe, has caused prices to rise and indications are that fur coat prices will increase again in 1976.

Berlin said prices for some furs, particularly mink, are reasonable because raw mink pelts have been underpriced in the last few years. He said demand has increased for long-haired furs such as lynx, racoon, red fox and wolf, but mink still leads fur garment sales.

So That Was Good Old '75 -A Banner Year for Sport

So, it's the end, almost, for old 1975, and how do you like your sports thrills in our town? Not bad, should be the answer because Victoria, in brief review, did better than all right and much better than most communities of comparable

Let's start at the very top, the national flagpole if you like; and mark up four team titles and some outstanding individual efforts just as a beginning.

Bates won the Canadian men's softball championship after many years of being close and London Boxing Club duplicated that effort in soccer with the city's first natonal title. Flora Martin and her senior women's rink repeated nationally in curling and the UVic Vikings took the collegiate soccer crown in a final win over Newfoundland.

Dave Cutler teaches school here when he isn't kicking field goals for the Edmonton Eskimos of the Canadian Foot-ball League. This season he kicked more than ever before, 40; booted more points, 169; and, to put the cap on a great year, hit for three field goals and all of Edmonton's points in the 9-8 Grey Cup victory over Montreal. Nobody, but nobody has done that well before.

But if that was good, how about the distaff deed of the year? That was a triple medal performance by Joyce Yakubowich at the Pan-American Games. She won the 400 metres, and anchored the 4x400 metre relay team for a pair of golds, and also got a bronze as a member of the 4x100 metre team. She's in line for all sorts of honors.

Dale Shaw dight win a major golf event in Canada, but Dale Shaw didn't win a major golf event in Canada, but she came close, second; was also high up internationally, and was dutifully honored by being picked as the best in Canada for 1975 by the Canadian Ladies' Golf Association.

Speaking of golf, Cee Ferguson got on the Canadian team for the Commonwealth matches by default, but wasted little time in proving he belonged. Ferguson was the only Canadian South Africa and, with the Canadian Amateur at Colwood this summer, who knyws?

Then of course, Victoria suddenly got a built-in affinity in the Stanley Cup champion Philadelphia Flyers. Mel Bridg-man, the starriest Cougar of a starry lot, was the first pick of the Flyers in the amateur draft and why not? He was an allstar and the WCHL scoring champion.

Not far behind was another Cougar. Rick La Point made the jump as a defenceman to Detroit. Two NHL grads in one season isn't bad and neither were the Cougars. Divisional champions, it was unfortunate they barely missed a Memorial Cup playoff berth.

Nationally, too, the youngsters belonged. Jim Rutledge

won the Canadian juvenile golf championship while Philip Delesalle won five gold medals alone in the Western Canada ngymnastic championships plus the all-round gold, also national honors, including selection to a Canadian team that competed in Europe.

A part-time resident, Wendy Barlow took several tennis honors, the more notable being the Canadian single closed, the Ontario junior, the national doubles with an ther Victorian Jennifer Bland, and the Canadian closed doubles with a Quebec girl, all in the under-16 grouping.

In wrestling, George Richey not only won the collegiate championship at 198 pounds but was named the outstanding competitor at the nationals; and a lad named Kevin Tietge won what many observers might have overlooked, the Cana dian junior men's archery title.

Internationally, provincially and otherwise, it was front and foremost for many others. Dorothy De Girolamo made a successful return to the links to capture her fourth B.C. women's gold title; Marg Todd won the senior laddes; Bill Thompson the senior men's; Sydney Thomson the PNGA junior girls; Gordie Moore's rink the B.C. over-60 curling title: Tom McKeachie and Chuck Davis the provincial lawn bowling doubles championship; James Bay the B.C. rugby title and Alcos took the measure of Vancouver in club

In addition, Janos Herb was named Canada's national and Olympic gymnastics coach; Stan Kern was an all-star in Canadian softball; so was Carl Walker; Joe Patterson was named coach-of-the-year; Roy Smith and Roy Haslam did all asked in international motor car sport; Kevin Alexander rewrote several national junior lacrosse scoring records; Archie Browning was selected co-coach of the year in the Western Lacrosse Association, and Wanda Allan and Geri Cosegrove were national archery team members.

And if that's not all, it's all for now. And a starry list of accomplishments it was too. For some, more honors undoubtedly will follow; and, if those occur in 1976, fine. Because the New Year is going to need all the help it can get — just to stay even. Victoria maybe has never had it so good.

KEN DRYDEN . . . top NHL goalie

BIG JOB FOR DRYDEN

MONTREAL (CP) — Coach Scotty Bow-man of Montreal Canadiens says if the onus is on anyone in tonight's game between his National Hockey League club and the Central Red Army team from the Soviet Union, it will be on Montreal goaltender Ken Dryden. "In a game like this one, you have to have treal's one-hour workout Tuesday.

And Dryden, the top goaltender in the NHL this season, wants to be on the winning

"It's a very big thing as far as I'm con-cerned," Dryden noted. "I don't understand that other attitude — that sort of professional cool. It's simply a way of underscoring whatever you do.'

Some members of the Canadiens said later ast week that tonight's game was just an exhibition game.

"One of the problems with the NHL's approach to any of these series is that they have a sort of take-it-as-it-comes attitude," Dryden said. "There's no special preparation no need to know the oppostion very well.

Dryden, who was a key man in Team Canada's series win over the Soviet Union's national team in 1972, thinks he knows the style he will have to use in tonight's contest.

"I hope that I'll be able to stand up. I don't know if you heard Harry Sinden on the telecast from New York on Sunday," Dryden said. "He said that it's extremely difficult for a goalie to play against the Russians. When the Russian team comes down the ice, they're either going to score or they're going to make the goalie make a difficult save.

"There's no hesitation in their play around the net. Their passes are quick and their shots are taken without winding up."

Some Ethics Were Lost While Access Increased

What happened to the days when a wilderness cabin stood as a symbol of trust between people who might never meet but shared the same requirements of survival?

This thought — and others of a more vitriolic nature — kept running through my mind as I stood Monday afternoon in the ashes of the magnifeent old cabin at Shields Lake.

Only a pile of stones marks the spot where the massive fireplace, which provided a welcome source of warmth and cheer during many of my boyhood camping forays, once stood.

Vandals were apparently responsible for burning this par-ticular piece of our heritage to the ground along with several other structures of more recent vintage that stood nearby. In days which now seem long gone, anyone building a wilderness cabin could leave it unlocked and stocked with both food and firewood. All passersby were welcome to par-take of this hospitality and most made a point of replacing

Long-time fishing buddy Larry Citra and I spent a whole afternoon several years ago gathering firewood for the abandoned ski chalet on Mt. Brenton near Chemainus. After cutting up the already-downed timber, each round was split and the firewood packed into old ski lockers to season. It also was planned as an experiment to find out whether the old ethic of replacing what you use still lived.

The next trip in, we found succeeding occupants had not only burned all the wood but had gone so far as to burn the

But as an experiment to gauge how far outdoor manners have been degraded, it proved an unfortunate point.

And the type of vandalism that can culminate in the actual burning of a cabin is, I think, only an extension of the same unthinking attitude.

How this attitude developed in a small but increasingly noticeable — in terms of the evidence they leave — segment of the public might provide some enterprising social scientist with an interesting topic for study. Perhaps the spread of logging roads throughout the province might be the overall governing factor. By providing easier vehicle access to areas where the influence of man was seldom felt, we might be providing an incentive for the undersirable elements of society to take their destructive habits further afield where the chances of getting caught are

Times Staff For the lonely, Christmas can be the worst day of the

But it was one of the best for 475 Victorians who turned out for Operation Heartwarm at the Wilson Inn.

It was the first annual gathering designed to bring together those who have no other place to go at Christmas and others who want to share their happiness.

The program, a joint effort of six organizations, was a st-minute idea that was successful, said James McCrossan, spokesman for Parents Without Partners.

The Unattached Society, the Canadian Mental Health Association, the Victoria Medical Society and Need-The Crisis Line. "The success of this one-day program establishes that there is a need among the lonely of Victoria," McCrossan

But that is only part of the solution.
"Loneliness and suicide does not pick any single day to It can come any day, any night.

He said discussions will be held with a number of organizations to form a common drop-in centre, a headquarters for Need and for the Samaritans, when the club is formed.

He said one of the reasons the Christmas Day program was successful was its setting, a warm, comfortable room with soft lights and music (but no liquor).

The wrong approach, he said, it to bring people together is some brightly lit hall with hard chairs and no music. The setting is all important.

A. Stabilizers, also referred to as thickening agents, are a group of substances used in everything from baby formula to salad dressing. Most stabi-lizers are natural carbohydrates, including, for exam-ple, agar, alginate and carrageenin from seaweed; pec-tin from fruits and berries; various gums derived from trees, and starch from corn, potatoes and other foods.

Q. Can you tell me whether there is any nutritional dif-ference between spray-dried and roller-dried, nonfat, powdered milk? Also, I am con-cerned about whether instant powdered milk contains as many nutrients as the non-instant type I sometimes get the local health food store.

A. The type of processing spray-drying or roller processing-of non-fat milk has little effect upon the nutritional quality of the finished product. Both are equal to fresh, non-fat skim milk and according to my latest check in the supermarket, still cost less than half as much.

In the spray-drying method, In the spray-drying method, most of the water is first removed from fresh, pasteurized skim milk under vacuum. The resulting concentrate is then sprayed info a chamber of hot filtered air, producing a fine powder of a very low moisture content. As for instantizing, it is a mechanical process that makes life a bit easier for busy homemakers. It does not affect the quality.

A: It is safe to keep the food in the original can after it has been opened if it is covered and kept refrigerated.

A few acid foods may dissolve a little iron from the can but this is not harmful or dangerous to health.

Q: The quantity of rice which I am allowed on my reducing diet is very small. Could I eat more rice if I washed it after cooking?

A: It is far more important to retain the B vitamins by not washing the rice that it is to remove a small amount of starch through washing.

Q: What is carob powder and can it be used as a replacement for chocolate?

A: The pods of the carob tree found in Mediterannéan countries are ground to produce carob powder which has a flavour similar to that of chocolate. Carob powder is high in carbohydrate and very low in fat.

Many people who are not able to use chocolate (often because of allergies) find that carob powder is an acceptable substitute. You can use it in baking but use less sugar when substituting carob powder for chocolate.

Late Tax Penalty Sought

Higher penalties should be charged for delinquent tax-payers, Esquimalt Mayor Art Young said Tuesday.

Otherwise municipalities may have to go into debt, he said, if the trend towards mounting property tax arrears continues.

Municipalities have to bornow money at a higher rate of interest than they are allowed to charge delinquent taxpayers, he said, urging the B.C. Municipal Act be amended to allow higher penalties.

"I would suggest we leave it up to the province to set the interest rate every year, maybe half a percent higher than what the rates on the money market are for short-term borrowing," Young said.

Young said his comments are aimed mainly at delin-quent commercial taxpayers "who need the operating capi-tal and go to the cheapest market."

Some businessmen would rather not pay their taxes and use the money at 10 and 8 per cent a year than borrow on the market at 10½ or 11 per

Under the Municipal Act penalties are fixed at 10 per cent for the first year and 8 per cent the year following.

In the city of Victoria more than $1 million in property taxes is outstanding; Saanich is trying to collect $660,000; Esquimalt is short $158,000 and the Oak Bay figure is $157,000.

NANAIMO — Five men were given suspended sentences in provincial court Tuesday after they were found guilty of unlawful assembly, in connection with the July 20 pre-bathtub race party that almost turned into a riot. that almost turned into a riot.

The five — Gordon Herbert Williamson, David Rees, Norman Attig, Charles Gallagher and Rowanow Majesky — were among 79 people arrested after a shouting, bottle-throwing crowd of about 500 people arrested in downtown people rampaged in downtown Nanaimo on the eve of the city's annual bathtub race.

The Nanaimo provincial court clerk said today the actual number of people charged was "much less than 79."

Earlier in the case, defence lawyer Donald Bohun asked Judge Jack Caldwell to quash the charges, saying not enough information concern-ing the "unlawful assembly" was presented by the Crown.

Caldwell refused the motion and a trail date of Dec. 30 was set.

The near-riot began with a crowd of between 250 and 300 stormed the downtown liquor store, smashing the front-door-and a plate glass window and stealing about $600 worth of liquor.

Riot-equipped police ringed the liquor store and the crowd left, only to join another group of about the same size. About 22 store windows in the downtown area were smashed and six officers were injured when the crowd started hurl-ing bottles and rocks at them.

Nanaimo Mayor Frank Ney was almost run over by a car, after he tried to talk the crowd out of staying in the

Irrigation Essential On Islands: Report

By HUMPHRY DAVY Times Staff

Some 30,000 acres of land on 13 Gulf Islands are suitable for various forms of agriculture, according to an agricultural resources report released today.

But only 5,000 acres are capable of reasonable crop production without irrigation.

For this reason the report.

For this reason the report, prepared by retired provincial agriculturist Shirley Preston, recommends that regional districts and Gulf Island plandistricts and Guil Island plan-ning groups request the pro-vincial government to conduct a comprehensive ground water study of the islands. "Agricultural residues and pollution problems related to the ever-increasing Guil Is-lands propulation rose serious the ever-increasing Gulf Is-lands population pose serious environmental problems." it states. "It is important for agriculturel, residental and commercial planning alike, that all potential water re-sources and water develop-ment be known."

The report states the study

The report states the study should emphasize the need for water storage and specify the lakes, ponds, water runs, and any areas where water can be stored, or storage increased by use of dams.

The study was prepared for the Islands Trust which was established in 1974 to preserve the unique amenities and en-vironment of the islands for the benefit of residents and the province generally.

The trust wanted a study because members were concerned about the present and ultimate use of an anticipated division of agricultural land

These reserves (ALRs) were designed by the B.C. Land Commission to protect agricultural land from subdivisions until the islanders determined what type of devicement and planning they elopment and planning they wanted.

The trust also felt there would be some moral obliga-tion to give assistance to is-land owners of high-tax agri-cultural reserve land.

The report recommends that a review be made of all water licences on the islands, and that no further licences be permitted without the ap-proval of the regional districts and Islands Trust.

This is the general feeling of Gulf Islanders, according to an agricultural resources report prepared by Shirley Preston, a retired provincial agriculturalist.

Islanders also think senior governments are not fully aware of the sensitive envi-ronmental nature of the is-

The study notes despite the decline of farming on the Gulf Islands and the rapid increase in population, people still want a rural and independent life-

"The new settlers are still attracted to the islands for the same basic reasons as those who came to live on Salt Spring Island during the period from 1857 to 1939."

It is because of the Gulf

Islanders' desire to retain this particular type of lifestyle that they demanded a say in SEATTLE (AP) — The U.S. navy has awarded $92 million worth of contracts so far and has about 650 construction workers on the job, building the $600 million Trident nuclear submarine base on Hood Canal ways a pay spokes. Canal, says a navy spokes-

Canal, says a navy spokesman.

The base, underway since October 1974 and one of 10 Trident ports being developed under a $15 billion program, will open on schedule, Lt. David Thomas told a businessmen's luncheon Tuesday.

The first Trident drews will begin classes in a $15 million training facility in the spring of 1977 before the Bangor base on the canal's east shore is completed, he said.

Thomas said the navy still plans to deploy the first Trident sub, with its 24 multiple-warhead nuclear missiles, in late 1979, despite legal manocuvring by environmental groups that may end up in the groups that may end up in the Preston advocates the ap-pointment of a full-time agri-culturist for the islands with headquarters at Ganges on Salt Spring Island.

He explains this is needed because many people interested in farming have little or no farm, garden or marketing

"The writer is convinced "The writer is convinced that there are sufficient number of residents of the Gulf Islands with a sincere desire to improve their home garden, truckgarden or farm operations to warrant greatly increased agricultural services on these islands."

With negard to agricultural land reserves, the report states subdivision of lands should not be considered until all other reasonable alternatives have been explored.

The alternatives would include:

Incentives in the way of fi-nancial assistance to a land owner, management service, assistance in securing or stor-ing water for traigation.

Permitting housing and roads only on marginal or ron-agricultural portions of property. The arable portion would thus remain intact and could be divided into allotment parcels for farm or garden use.

den use.

Outright purchase of land by the commission to permit lease of the land as a whole, or in allotment parcels for agricultural use.

In cases where subdivision is permitted, the minimum parcel size for subdivision of agricultural reserve lands should not be less than 40 acres.

U.S. MAIL RATES JUMP

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cost of malling a letter went up to 13 from 10 cents today, the sixth increase in the last 17 years. The increase in postal rates is unlikely to end there.

Postmaster-General Benjamin Bailar has said the letter rate might go up to 15 or 17 cents by 1977 and 23 cents by 1980. He says inflation is responsible,

Chief Justice Warrèn Burger refused to block the higher rates on Tuesday, less than six hours before they went into effect at 12:01 a.m. today.

Burger turned down a request from bulk mailers to reverse Monday's U.S. Court of Appeals decision which cleared the way for the increase. The appeals court stayed a lower court order prohibiting the Postal Service from raising year is a sobering time to assess our efforts and results in the garden world.

The new rates include a 13-cent charge for the first ounce of a first-class letter and 11 cents for each additional ounce, nine cents for a postcard from seven cents and increases averaging 10.1 per cent in parcel post, 22.1 per cent for second-class mail and 23.9 per cent for third-class bulk rates.

Most who do garden work themselves, do so for the pleasure of achievement. Psy-chologists have been busy finding reasons for people doing things, including grow-ing plants.

They are inclined to believe our motivation is based on a loss of decision-making opporloss or decision-making oppor-tunity in our daily lives but that scarcely fits many who certainly come to grips with decisions many times each be sure that pleasure does enter into the work. If we don't like or cannot do the work part, we must make changes now which will result in more leisurely pleasure.

The first change to make is in realizing that the garden must be a place for relaxation — at home. No longer is it the faraway places which offer nently there when you want it. In winter you will be warmly dressed; you will often take a mug of hot coffee out there, and you will be surprised at the simple things of nature which suddenly become apparent as you become more aware of what you see through a relaxed mind.

through a relaxed mind.

Not only are you likely to see the first crocus opening and closing in the late winter sun followed by grey cloud, or the first daffoid! in early spring but you will be more about the control of the control spring but you will be more aware of subtle changes in air textures, cloud movements, shadows shortening as the sun climbs higher in the sky — all these wonders await those who plan a garden for relaxation.

This need for relaxing outdoors at home was recognized years ago in large cities.

Little backyard gardens existed behind tall old houses in fashionable Squares in the City of London (England) and landscapers worked at designing quiet spots belfind the

York City back in the 1930s.
On 25 by 40-foot plots of ground behind the dingy fronted houses, a couple of trees, a vine, a few evergreen shrubs became the groundwork of many quiet retreats.

A paved or bricked terrace, a tiny pool or fountain, a tub or two of herbs, these were individual touches reflecting personalities.

In these tiny gardens with a patch of sky visible only di-rectly overhead, there was an amazing sense of peace and serenity.

Today, even on the Facino Coast we are needing the therapy of a quiet garden, freed from constant care and attention. At this year end take time to assess the possibilities of a small portion of the existing garden being the existing garden being changed into a serene spot of peace.

Change is growth — growth means change. We need a quiet place, at home, where we may, ourselves, grow.
